| Scope and Content Note | The accession consists of 19 boxes of records. 8 series were established: Subject Files: Correspondence & Clippings, Manuscripts, Audio Tapes, Slides, Videos, Photographs and Framed Material, Posters-Paintings-Scrapbooks, Cartographic Materials. |

The first two series, Subject Files and Manuscripts were arranged in file folders entitled by Prof. Pollock. The original order was kept and the documents were put into acid neutral file folders and titles were transcribed verbatim. Manuscripts include Pollock's novel Gabriel, plays, poems and the unpublished After the funferal and Soviet journal.

Audio tapes of interviews conducted by Prof. Pollock were not in any particular order. An effort was made to put the related ones together and the titles assigned by Harry J. Pollock were maintained. There are also audio tapes of music for his plays Slides consist of those that Prof. Pollock used in the plays Night Boat from Dublin and Giacomo de Trieste, these were removed from the boxes and slide carousels and placed in archival slide sheaths. They are listed by play tittle in the original sequence in which they were shown. Duplicate and additional slides are listed according to subject. Titles given by Harry J. Pollock were kept.

The three videocassettes include one entitled Portrait of the artist-is there one who understands me? and two of Japan.

Immediate Source of Gift of Harry J. Pollock Acquisition

Notes on Processing of the Framed material was removed from there Materials frames where they had been stored under glass. On dismantling the frames, and removing the photographs from them, other items were discovered behind the photographs. Previously displayed prints and newspaper clippings had been concealed by more recent photographs.

No further processing was performed due to shortage of time. The staples and duplicates will be removed from the collection at a later date.

|-------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Scope and Content Note | Series consists of slides used by Harry J. Pollock in his plays Night Boat From Dublin and Giacomo de Trieste are listed by play title. |
|-------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|

In the production Giacomo de Trieste four slide projectors and two dissolve units were used. One dissolve unit projected a horizontal image while the other projected a vertical image. Two slide projectors were connected to each dissolve unit, which was used to dissolve back and forth between the images shown by the two projectors. Each slide carousel therefore contained every other slide shown, one containing all the even numbered slides the other containing all the odd numbered slides. The sequence of these slides has been preserved and they are listed according to the carousel and dissolve unit to which they correspond. They are therefore listed under the headings vertical odds, vertical evens, horizontal odds, horizontal evens.

Slides from the production Night Boat From Dublin are listed under this heading. All additional slides in this series are duplicates and have been listed by place and subject.
